A "SKEETER" HAS A NEEDLE, WHERE THERE SHOULD HAVE BEEN A NOSE.

BUT YOU'RE LUCKY YOU'RE NOT LIVING WHERE
THE LOONEY "SKEETER" GROWS

THE FOLKS WHO LIVE IN LOONEY ARE ALL SUMMER IN DESPAIR.

FOR
THE "SKEETERS" ARE SO VICIOUS THEY
ALL USE A GIMLET, THERE.

Jim Davis.

LOONEY LAND

You've heard of the ant-eating monster
As cru-el as monsters can be
Eats ants for his breakfast and luncheon,
As well as for dinners and tea.

On Looney the ant-eating monster,
According to stories they tell,
Eats up all the ants that he finds there,
And some of the uncles, as well.

Jim Davis

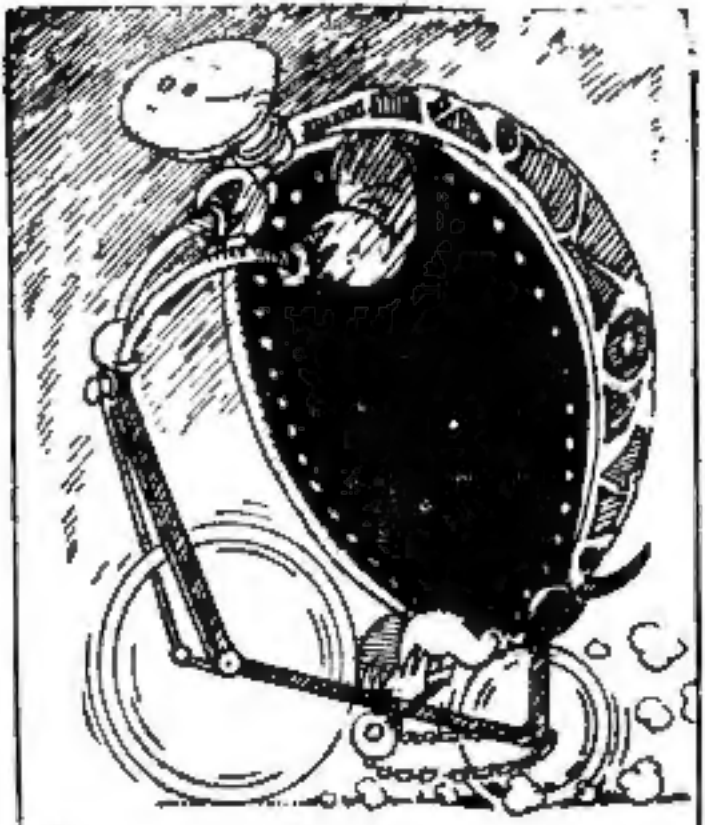
LOONEY LAND

Have you ever seen
A Leopard?
It is spotted o'er and o'er.
Yet it doesn't seem
To worry—
Really wishes it had more.

But in Looney Land
A Leopard
Has'nt any spots, they say.
It is very hygienic.
Takes a bath
Each Saturday.

Jim Benoni

LOONEY LAND



A TORTOISE IS
THE SLOWEST THING,
IN ANY SORT OF CLIME.
IT'S DOUBTFUL THAT IT EVER HAS REACHED ANY PLACE ON TIME.
IN LOONEYLAND, A TORTOISE, WHEN
IT GOES UPON A HIKE
IS SURE TO FINISH
EARLY, FOR
IT ALWAYS RIDES A BIKE.

Jim Vanoni Copyright 1926 by Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.

LOONEY LAND

A fish
has bones.
Don't swallow one
next FRIDAY, OR
YOUR HIST'RY'S DONE.

Jim Ovando

In LOONEYLAND it's quite a sight,
TO see THE FISH
before they bite.
They STAND upon their heads
AND SHAKE.
Their bones FALL OUT
INTO THE LAKE.

Copyright 1936 by Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.

An eel
IS VERY SLIPPERY, IN SCHOOL BOOKS WE WERE TOLD.
A flock of frightened
ELEPHANTS IS EASIER TO HOLD.

IN LOONEY LAND AN EEL IS QUITE ACCOMODATING. WHY
HE WEARS A GRIP, SO
YOU CAN TAKE,
HIM EASILY HOME
TO FRY.

Jim Davis..

Copyright 1976 by Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.